Smart Snacks Fundraiser Exemptions

On June 28, 2013, the United States Department of Agriculture issued an interim final rule establishing nutrition standards for all foods sold in schools.¹ With an implementation date of July 1, 2014, “Smart Snacks” sets nutrition standards for all foods and beverages sold on the school campus during the school day, including those sold through school fundraisers. However, under the new rule, states are allowed to establish exemptions for infrequent school-sponsored fundraisers. Exempt fundraisers may not be sold in competition with school meals in the food service area during meal service, and may not occur more frequently than specified by the State agency.

The chart that follows shows that most states have chosen to implement their approved number of exemptions through methods beyond those of codified statutes and regulations. As a result, collection of policies involved a two-step process: 1) searching state databases available through commercial legal research service providers, LexisNexis and Westlaw, for policies adopted in codified statutes and regulations; and 2) searching states’ Department of Education and Child Nutrition Program websites. In addition, secondary sources were consulted from the School Nutrition Association² (last updated March 27, 2015) and Pew’s State Data Tables (compiled January 2015).³

The information listed here is current with laws available on LexisNexis and Westlaw as of June 1, 2016 as well as with websites and accompanying documents available as of the same date. Effective dates are included in the table below in order to more easily identify recent changes to policies. The sources where fundraiser exemptions were found are separated into 4 categories:

- 1) Law—includes codified statutes and administrative regulations
- 2) Policy—includes state-level memos and board policies
- 3) Guidance Document—includes PowerPoint presentations, handouts, newsletters, and other forms of technical assistance
- 4) Website—includes information posted directly on the Department of Education or Child Nutrition Program website

Under “Smart Snacks,” if a state does not adopt a policy on exemptions, it is considered to have a policy of zero exemptions allowed. However, in the information below, states that have adopted policies explicitly stating zero exemptions are allowed are separated from those states that have not yet adopted a policy. In addition, states that have adopted policies specifically requiring that all foods and beverages sold through fundraisers meet Smart Snack standards, without going on to allow any exemptions, are considered to have a policy that allows zero exemptions (see MD, MT).

Policies below were analyzed for any attempt to provide for fundraiser exemptions during the school day. No substantive changes were seen since the last quarterly report: four states have not established a policy on exempt fundraisers, 20 states have a policy allowing 0 exemptions, 21 states have a policy that regulates the number of exempt fundraisers, 5 states have a policy that regulates the number of exempt fundraising days, and 1 state regulates the number of school events at which any food or beverages can be sold.⁴

⁴ Specifics relating to types of fundraisers or specific events at which non-compliant food and beverages may be sold were not seen outside of this one policy. However, if a policy allows fundraisers per school group or organization, it will be noted below.

*Under Smart Snacks, if no policy is adopted the state defaults to zero exemptions allowed.

¹⁵ This policy applies only to those schools that do not participate in Connecticut Healthy Food Certification. Schools that do participate are required to follow Smart Snacks at all times during the school day.

¹⁶ State law as well as the DC Local Wellness Policy requires that fundraisers meet USDA Smart Snacks requirements as well as the HealthierUS School Challenge Gold Level. Gold level was revised in August 2014 and states “the school only permits food-related fundraisers that meet USDA’s Smart Snack standards, even if the State allows exemptions.”

*Under Smart Snacks, if no policy is adopted the state defaults to zero exemptions allowed.
